Note on the continuing mystery of the waif.

Long enough before it could have happened I wrote and said I might be nearby soon and would a visit be welcome? Under circumstances in which almost any visit by anyone from the past and at all friendly should have been longed for nothing but silence. Makes me wonder even more about the firm refusal to even suggest the nature of the charges. Or, more and more when I think about it the major crime in the area comes to mind. Past behavior would indicate any convenient lie would be used to save face. HW 4/9/74